Guatemala visa guide for Bangladeshi passport holders

How to apply: Visa likely needed (confirm with IGM) · Last checked: 4 November 2026 · Online version: https://travelcsbd.com/visa/guatemala/

We could not open an official Guatemalan page that classifies Bangladesh. The Instituto Guatemalo de Migracion (IGM) Extranjeria portal has a 'country classification' section, but its content did not load for us. Third-party sources that reproduce the IGM list put Bangladesh in Category C ('visa consultada'), meaning IGM must authorise the visa in Guatemala before a consulate issues it, usually with a Guatemalan sponsor. Because this is not confirmed on an official page we have read, nearly every item below is marked 'Confirm with our office'. Last checked 4 November 2026.

Quick facts

Visa needed?
Probably yes. Third-party sources place Bangladesh in IGM Category C (consulted visa). Not confirmed on an official page we could read.

Through IGM in Guatemala and a Guatemalan embassy or consulate. No Guatemalan mission in Dhaka was found. One third-party site says the embassy in New Delhi is accredited for Bangladesh; this is unverified.

How the process is described

- Under the Guatemalan system, countries are sorted into categories. For a 'consulted visa' country, the request is sent to IGM's Subdirección de Extranjería for authorisation, and only then does a Guatemalan consulate issue the visa. Third-party guides say a Guatemalan sponsor registered with IGM is needed. We have not confirmed this on an official page.
- Bangladesh is not known to have a Guatemalan mission in Dhaka. Do not send money or documents to anyone claiming to guarantee a Guatemalan visa; ask our office or IGM first.
- A visa does not guarantee entry. Guatemalan immigration officers decide at the border.

Transit and connecting visas

- Flights from Dhaka to Guatemala usually connect through other countries (often the US, Mexico, Panama or the Middle East), which may require their own transit or entry visas. Check each country's rules separately.
